REVIEW
OF EUROPEAN EVENTS.

MAY 4. AFTER the peace with Naples, Gen. Murat ſent home all the Roman and Neapolitan patriots who had taken refuge in his camp. He iſſued a proclamation to them as a memento for their gratitude to France, who had made it a point to ſtipulate with their governments that they ſhould be allowed to return home, and ſhould not be moleſted:—But he ſhrewdly hints to them, that, after getting home, they muſt engage in NO MORE dangerous undertakings, which might prove ruinous to themſelves and their country.—Learn, (ſays he) from the example of France, what revolutions coſt. Heaven does not always bleſs a country with a man like BONAPARTE, to ſnatch them from deſtruction, and put an end to the ſhedding of blood." It is curious to remark, how the men, who are employed in the preſent government of France, are gradually drawing towards the ſentiment of abhorrence againſt the revolution. How hard they ſtruggle againſt the confeſſion, and yet how often they ſlide into it againſt their will. How they ſhuffle between the ſtings of conviction and the horns of apoſtacy. How they ſtand vibrating between the backward look, to times when a doubt againſt jacobin doctrines was political hereſy, and the forward look, to times when a doubt in their favour will be the ſame. Time-ſerving ſouls! They dare not avow the moſt honeſt and honourable opinion, until they have aſcertained whether it is popular; and even when they hit upon it, you ſee by their anxious labour to unnerve it by ſome ſalve for folly, that they value truth itſelf only, inaſmuch as it bears reſemblance to falſhood.

6.—The Vienna Court Gazette contains an order from the Emperor to the heads of all the civil officers at his court, commanding them to require a declaration by oath of every perſon employed in the reſpective offices, that he belongs to no ſecret ſociety or fraternity, either within the Auſtrian dominions or in a foreign country, or if he does, that he will immediately renounce forever ſuch ſociety. This oath is annually to be renewed, and every perſon who refuſes to take it is to be diſmiſſed inſtantly from his office. The motives alledged for this order, are, that ſecret ſocieties have been proved, by experience, one of the principal ſources whence the moſt pernicious principles have been ſpread, true religion undermined, morality if not wholly deſtroyed, at leaſt, very much perverted, party ſpirit, by every poſſible artifice inflamed to the higheſt degree, and even the peace and happineſs of domeſtic life overthrown.

6.—The Auſtrian monarchy, even in its preſent ſtate of declenſion and defeat, remains one of the great powers of Europe and if its moral powers were equal to its phyſical reſources, would ſtill be an adequate balance for France. By the opinion of thoſe who have a nearer view of it than I can have, its greateſt want, is a want of men—not of people, nor of ſoldiers; but of men, capable of conducting a great empire. This deficiency prevails in a deplorable degree. It reſults principally from the nature of the government and the ſpirit of the reigning religion. The firſt checks all enterprize, and the ſecond ſtifles all enquiry. In ſuch a ſtate of things how ſhould men be formed either for action or for mediation?

The late prime miniſter Thugut, was a man of great addreſs, of wit, of genius; but without application, without principle and without heart. The want of theſe qualities left him blind, where a child ought to have ſeen, and ſunk him where lead would have ſwam. The Archduke Charles, recalled to ſave his country and his houſe, when human power could ſave them only at the expence of ſhame and diſmemberment, ſuffered perhaps perſonal reſentments to have too great influence over him, or conſidered his own power as precarious ſo long as Thugut was not formally diſgraced. This was effected, and the Archduke placed with unlimited authority at the head of the military department. But his conſtitution is ſo feeble and infirm that it cannot ſtand the toils of ſuch an office, and twice within theſe three months he has been dangerouſly ill. The laſt time, in the firſt days of this month, at ſuch an extremity as to receive the ſacraments of the Church. He has, however, for this time eſcaped. Great events may depend upon his life; but his life depends upon a ſtraw.

7. By virtue of a Convention between Prince Charles of Heſſe Caſſel, as commander in chief of the Daniſh troops at Hamburg, ſir James Crauford, the Engliſh, and Mr. Schultz, the Pruſſian Miniſter there, it was agreed, that the neutrality of the Elbe ſhould, from this day, be compietely reſtored; that ſhips of all nations and under all colours, might come and go without impediment or diſturbance; that in caſe hoſtilities between England and Denmark ſhould be renewed, the return of all veſſels which ſhould come upon the faith of the Convention, ſhould be ſecured, and no embargo or ſequeſter ſhould be laid upon Engliſh property. And on the other hand Sir James Craufurd engaged to deliver paſſports for the Daniſh veſſels bound from the ports of the Elbe, to Greenland and Norway, which ſhould ſecure them from capture by Engliſh ſhips of war and cruizers.

8. An ordinance of the King of Sweden, was publiſhed, by which the exportation and importation of all permitted articles in foreign veſſels (excepting Engliſh) is allowed upon the ſame terms as in Swediſh veſſels. Three months notice is to be given when the difference, always made in time of peace, ſhould be re eſtabliſhed; This is one of the firſt conſequences of Sweden's acceſſion to the armed neutrality. Inſtead of being the carrier of other natinons, ſhe muſt now call upon others to be carriers for her.

Sir Hyde Parker having returned to England, the command of the Engliſh fleet in the Baltic remains with Lord Nelſon. A miſunderſtanding between theſe two commanders took place on the 2d of April, and government has pronounced in Nelſon's favour. The cauſe was the armiſtice, which Nelſon was averſe to concluding, and which the Britiſh miniſtry diſapproved, though they acquieſced in it. Nelſon this day ſent a flag with a letter to the Swediſh admiral, Cronſtedt, at Carlſcrona, informing him, that the free navigation of Swediſh veſſels in the Baltic, which his predeceſſor had engaged to allow, did not extend to the Swediſh fleet, and if that ſhould appear at ſea, he was not ordered to abſtain from hoſtilities. Admiral Cronſtedt anſwered him, that the King was already gone to Stockholm, and that he had immediately forwarded Nelſon's letter thither. The King arrived at Stockholm the 10th. The check upon the Swediſh fleet's going out is ſaid to have produced a great ſenſation at that capital; but out it will hardly venture after this warning. The precaution was neceſſary to prevent a junction between the Swediſh and Ruſſian or Daniſh fleets, and to preſerve the advantageous poſition under which the Engliſh admiral agreed to the armiſtice. For the ſame purpoſe a reinforcement of five ſhips of the line and two frigates has been ſent, under the command of Admiral Totty, to join the Baltic fleet, and on the 9th inſt. they paſſed the Sound.

12.—The American ſloop of war Maryland, arrived at Havre, having on board Mr. Dawſon, who brought with him the convention, and a commiſſion and inſtructions to Meſſieurs Elliſworth and Murray, jointly or ſeverally, to negotiate the alterations deſired by the American ſenate. Mr. Dawſon in the channel, diſpatched a letter to London, for Mr. Elliſworth, informing him of theſe circumſtances, and requeſting him to come to Paris, where he would deliver him the commiſſion and inſtructions. But Mr. Elliſworth had ſailed in the beginning of April for the United States. Arrived at Havre, Mr. Dawſon wrote a letter to Mr. Murray, ſimilar to that which he had ſent to Mr. Elliſworth. Mr. Murray anſwered him, that upon the mere letter of a ſtranger, without a line from his government, he could not quit his poſt. I ſuppoſe Mr. Dawſon finally ſent him the commiſſion. The French newſpapers have converted Mr. Dawſon himſelf into an American Miniſter. One of them ſays, that Mr. Dawſon, the new Envoy Extraordinary from the United States of America, had, in company with Gen. Koſciuſko, paid a viſit to Thomas Paine, and delivered him a very affectionate letter from Mr. Jefferſon, inviting him to return to America, and offering him the uſe of a public veſſel for his paſſage.

15—Lord St. Helen's, appointed by the Engliſh Government to go and compliment the new Emperor of Ruſſia upon his acceſſion, landed this day at Copenhagen from the frigate in which he was going to St. Peterſburg; he had a conference with the Daniſh Miniſter of Foreign Affairs, Count Bernſtorff, and the next day proceeded upon his voyage. Immediately after this, Count Bernſtorff himſelf was appointed to go as ambaſſador Extraordinary to England. In addition to all the forcible inducements which already operated upon Denmark to ſeek an amicably adjuſtment of differences with England, the accounts of the Daniſh iſlands in the Weſt Indies having been taken by the Engliſh, have juſt arrived to ſtrengthen her in this diſpoſition

NEW-YORK, Sept. 21.

Yeſterday arrived here in a ſhort paſſage from Malaga via Gibraltar, the ſhip Aſtrea, capt. Paine; who has obligingly favored the editors of the New-York Gazette with Gibraltar papers to the 31ſt of July, inclufive. We now give the moſt intereſting news from them, reſerving, till to-morrow, the articles of leſs importance.

Capt. Paine informs us, that on the 8th of Auguſt, the day he arrived at Gibraltar, the ſeamen belonging to the Tripolitan cruizers mutinied, and deſerted their ſhips, for want of proviſions, and about 150 had landed, when the Governor ſtopt them, and ſent them on board a Mooriſh veſſel; in which the beſt part of the two ſhip's crews departed for Tituan; the governor of which place had promiſed to ſupply them with food. Thus ſituated, continues capt. Paine, is the Scots renegado, commander of the Tripolitan fleet, that he has entirely diſmantled the brig of 18 guns, and has only about 40 men, excluſive of officers, on board his own ſhip, which mounts 28 guns. It is ſuppoſed at Gibraltar, from this circumſtance, that he will not dare to return to Tripoli, but that he will diſpoſe of the veſſels he has with him, bid adieu to Mahomet, and turn Chriſtian again.

On the 6th of Auguſt, the day capt. P. left Malaga, he was boarded by the U. S. frigate Philadelphia, S. Barron, eſq. commander, who was waiting for the Tripolitan croizers to come out of Gibraltar.—They were well and in high ſpirits, expecting, ere long, to make prize of thoſe Barbarians.

GIBRALTAR, JULY 31.

INTELLIGENCE FROM EGYPT.

This morning arrived his Majeſty's brig of war Spider, in 43 days from Alexandria.

At the time of the Spider's leaving Alexandria, [the 18th June] that garriſon ſtill held out—But Gen. Hutchinſon and about 8000 troops in high health and ſpirits, and abundantly ſupplied, were within about 12 miles of Cairo, which place is probably now in his power, as the General had with him about 30,000 Turks, & a large body of Mamelukes, who had joined the Britiſh forces. With this army General Hutchinſon was making arrangements for the complete inveſting of the French force at Cairo, amounting to 7000 men, Only a part of the Bombay army had arrived at Suez, and joined Sir John Hutchinſon; the remainder having been delayed in their navigation up the Red Sea, (where the Forte frigate, uſed as a victualling tranſport, was unfortunately caſt away) would not be at their deſtination till July. The four regiments which we mentioned in a former Chronicle to have paſſed Gibraltar in the line of battle ſhips, have arrived ſafely in Egypt.

Gantheaume's ſquadron, conſiſting of 3 line of battle ſhips, 2 frigates, and ſome tranſports, with a re-inforcement of troops for Menou's army had arrived on the coaſt of Africa, to the weſtward of Egypt, but finding it impracticable to put the troops on ſhore, on account of a high ſurf, the ſquadron had returned to the coaſt of Italy.—The Britiſh cruizers had captured 4 or 5 of the tranſports, with troops, doctors, and ſtores. On board one of them, was a company of ſingers, dancers, and comedians, ſent by the firſt conſul, for the recreation of his Egyptian army.

A detachment of the Britiſh army under the command of B. Gen. Doyle, had intercepted and taken priſoners, a body of Menou's army, on their march, through the deſart, from Alexandria to Cairo, conſiſting of 500 of their very beſt troops, 140 horſes, and 550 camels.

Damietta had been evacuated by its garriſon, who (600 in number) embarked at Burlos, with a view of either getting into Alexandria, or reaching France; the whole of theſe were captured: and, in one week 1400 French priſoners were taken by the Britiſh forces, without the loſs of one man.

The whole of Sir James Saumarez's ſquadron is completely repaired, and either at, or ready for ſea, including the St. Antoine, (captured ſhip) whoſe officers and men were entirely French, though claſſed by admiral Moreno as a Spaniſh ſhip.

A gentleman, who arrived in the Aſtrea, informs, that the Engliſh frigate Penelope, in 31 days from Alexandria, arrived at Gibraltar two days before he ſailed, one of the officers of which told him, that Gantheaume had landed part of his troops about 80 leagues from Alexandria; that the French in an engagement with the Mamelukes, had been victorious; that Alexandria ſtill held out; and, that the ſituation of the Engliſh in Egypt was not ſo favorable as it had been. The above frigate was going home with diſpatches.

[This news, though much later than the account from the Gibraltar paper in this day's Gazette, does not appear ſo well authenticated.] N. Y. G.

We are informed that a man, named Wilson, with a team of five horses, was driving from Baltimore, on his way towards Kentucky, when the gust on Tuesday evening commenced. About a mile from Mr. Towson's tavern, a sudden flash of lightning struck himself and horses, all of whom were instantly killed.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 25.

Married last evening, Mr. CURTIS GRUB, of Berkley county, to Miss SARAH TOMLINSON, of this place.

The following gentlemen were duly chosen Senators of the state of Maryland, at an election for that purpose, held at Annapolis, on Monday last:

WESTERN SHORE,
Democratic.

Richard Mackal, Walter Bowie, John Johnston, Richard Harwood, William Smith, Jamee H. M'Culloch, John T. Worthington, Samuel Ringgold, John Tyler.

EASTERN SHORE.

Henry Hollingsworth, Robert Wright, William Whitely, William Polk, William Hayward, James Brown.

Extract of a letter from London dated July 30.

"Flour has fallen, within a few days, 20s. a barrel. The fall was so rapid and unexpected, that many neglected to comply with the regulations of the act, and in consequence are excluded from the benefits of the bounty. It is supposed that more than six months consumption of foreign grain and flour are now on hand in this kingdom."

Some idea may be formed of the immense slaughter in the Austrian army, in the course of the late war. The regiment of the Emperor's dragoons received 11000 recruits, although it only consists of 3800 men ; and the regiment of Colloredo has only two men of the whole number who served in 1791.

In consequence of the increased duty upon paper, in England, the booksellers there have been obliged to abandon their design of reprinting a new and complete edition of the British Poets. The new duty upon paper, so far from encreasing the revenue, threatens to destroy the consumption almost altogether. All literary projects which were not far advanced, are necessarily laid aside, and the stagnation in this brauch of business begins already to be severely felt.

From the Balance.

MONEY is like water—and it is as much impossible that the one should be equally distributed among mankind, as that the other should be spread alike over high and low land. We well know that rains fall without any discrimination on every kind of soil ; but we also know, that some, from their peculiar situations, are more capable of retaining it than others. Water, by force or labor, may be carried to the top of a mountain—but, leave it to itself, and it will soon find its way into the valley again.

Philosophers and theorists have never been able to discover any method by which water can be made to creep up hill of its own accord—and, perhaps, they never will. If they should, however, it will happen at the identical time when money is equally distributed, and alike retained among all classes of mankind. It will be well if neither of these things ever happen. We should be dismayed to see the Atlantic discharging itself, and pouring its waters over the whole of the western continent. We should shudder to behold the current of Hudson river rushing impetuously to the summit of the Catskil mountains ; And we should laugh, if we were not too much surprised, to see the water leaving our cisterns, to find its way back to the roots of our houses. Just as much, perhaps, would moderate and rational men be shocked, to see our banks demolished, and their contents scattered amongst the multitude—to see miser's chests unlocked, and their rusty dollars bustled into the hats of a thousand pilferers—and to see every prudent man's pocket turned wrong side out, and unladen by Newgate and State-prison convicts.

An equal distribution of property and power can never take place in the world, until all mankind are precisely alike in capacity and disposition. This will never be—and, if it should, such a state of things would resemble a boundless plain of land, overflowed with stagnant water——a trackless waste, without variety——an uninteresting void——or a sea without a shore. TOUCHSTONE.

POLITICAL CATECHISM.

Extracted by Petronius from the records of the Assembly of Democrats, at Washington.

Question. What is the chief end of modern Republianism ?

Ans. To get into office.

Quest. What rule has your guides given for your direction ?

Ans. To rail against the former administration, the British treaty, public debt, and public expences.

Quest. Is that all which is required of you ?

Ans. No—It is further required that we call Federalists and those who fought the battles of their country, British agents, tories, &c.

Quest. What do you understand by liberty ?

Ans. By liberty I understand licentiousness, or an inherent right in man to act according to the dictates of his own will.

Quest. What are dictates ?

Ans. Dictates are laws, which man set up in his mind, for his self government.

Quest. Is there no other government necessary for man's happiness, independent of what he wills ?

Ans. None necessary, but some arbitrarily adopted even in republics, that is merely to create office, for those incapable of labour.

Quest. Is it consistent with the Age of Reason, to pay people for what is unnecessary !

Ans. No! it is not consistent with reason, for that is aristocratical ; but it is consistent with republicanism, if those put in office are true republicans.

Quest. As man is a free agent and can act as well independently, as by association, ought not his consent to be obtained, before we take his property ?

Ans. Not if he is educated upon aristocratic principles—for although I allow man to be a free agent——yet necessity knows no law—and the end sanctifies the means. [Boston pap.]

TRAITS OF LIFE.

THE BUTTERFLY AND THE BEAU.

"WHAT a gay insect is this little butterfly"—said Miss Sedate to Miss Mirthley, as they were walking in the garden. "He's gay, but he's good for nothing," replied Miss Mirthley, laughing—"He's precisely like the beaux." "See," said Miss Sedate, "how he wheels and dips about from flower to flower, without stopping, like the industrious bee, to collect their sweets."——"An exact emblem of the beaux," replied Miss Mirthley—"you may see them on a Sunday afternoon, or a summer's evening, fluttering around every young lady in town,—never halting, like the youth of understanding, to derive any real advantage from the internal charms of the sex ; but flauntingly skimming about—stealing a glance from one—snatching a kiss from another, and then passing on to the next and the next, till all his acquaintances have been amused with his nonsense, or disgusted with his impudence."——"But you know, Miss Mirthly," said Miss Sedate, smiling, "that this same butterfly, a few weeks ago, was one of the meanest of grubs—a little worm, encompassed in a shell."—"That completes the resemblance," cried Miss Mirthley, with a triumphant laugh, "the beau has been as much a grub as a butterfly."

When he was a boy, he was despised for his dullness and stupidity ; and his uncouth and clownish behavior rendered him the laughing-stock and derision of his mates. But, after grovelling in his shell for a season, he bursts forth—an ignorant, impudent, conceited, fluttering, fantastical beau. His neck swaddled with an enormous pudding—his hair reduced to a rat's-tail, and plastered with pomatum and powder—and his legs lost in a pair of almost boundless boots—he sallies out to emulate the butter-fly.

SONNET.—TO SEPARATION.

THOU ill, replete with many a bitter pang,
Once more thy victim, lonely I repine ;
Am doom'd to bear thy bosom torturing fang,
As usury for bliss so lately mine.

Ah what avails ! that dearest friends should meet,
Since it revives thy more than murd'rous pow'r ;
E'en while we listen to their converse sweet,
A thought of thee, obscures the halcyon hour.

To feeling hearts thou wilt remain a foe,
While time exists, for thy delight's in tears ;
And that the bosom may consume with woe,
Oft makes a day appear a term of years.

But if, for me, thou'st other pangs in store,
Be quick—for soon my heart will feel no more.

I wish to sell a number of very valuable Negroes, among whom are a good waggoner, shoemaker, house-maid, &c. None more capable servants are to be met with! I will give a short credit upon them, assured of punctual payment.

I have about 600 acres of land lying along the Ohio, about 8 or 9 miles below Limestone: 200 between the town of Washington and May's Lick, in Mason county, and several tracts in the interior counties in Kentucky, for sale, or to exchange for property in this or the state of Maryland.

The first of those is nearly all bottom the second lies well for cultivation, is in an excellent neighborhood, well timbered, with good never failing water, and both have a delightful range for stock, particularly hogs. The titles are indisputable. A good bargain may be had of those and other lands in that state! I have also for sale, a share in the Potomac Company, and a small annuity in the town of Alexandria. SALT.

10,000 bushels of coarse SALT,

For Sale by

JOSEPH RIDDLE and Co.

Sept. 9. eo

The Subscriber will SELL,

OR

EXCHANGE for approved land near the Blue-Ridge,

A valuable Tract of Land in Northumberland county, two miles from the court-house, and near the bank of the Potomac, containing 1163 acres. This tract is divided into two plantations, on the one there is a brick dwelling house 50 by 33 feet conveniently divided, and two brick offices, 24 by 16 feet. A farmed house 20 by 16 feet designed for an overseer, and other out houses.

The conveniences of this place are equalled by few, and the prospect excelled by none in the state. The house is situated on a high hill and commands an extensive view of the Potomac and the Chesapeake bay. There is a creek abounding with the finest fish and oysters, which terminates the flat land of this tract, that is navigable for bay craft, and affords an excellent landing place within half a mile of the house. On this part of the tract there is an excellent bearing apple and peach orchard, and a variety of other fruit trees. It has a great sufficiency of oak and hickory timber, for the use of the plantation, besides a large quantity of pine.

On the other plantation there is a frame dwelling house 32 by 16 feet, and a few out houses, such as tenants generally have about them. This part of the tract is as well situated for farming as any lands in Virginia. It is well watered, has a sufficiency of timber for its support, and flourishing young peach and apple orchards.

As it is presumable that no person will make such a purchase without viewing the premises, all that is necessary to add is that Mr. Spencer Ball, living thereon, will shew the whole, and is fully authorised to make sale thereof.

JAMES V. BALL.

N. B. Any person purchasing may be supplied with stock of all kinds necessary and sufficient for the plantation.

THIS tale is written in a manner at once simple, entertaining and highly interesting. The characters are strongly marked—The passions are expressed with vehemence—that of Love in particular, with gay but not indecent luxuriance. One of the English reviews, in noticing this little work, says it is "related with much animation, and embellished with decorations of style; and the translator has displayed great ability and uncommon command of language—I would, therefore, recommend the performance to the attention of every class of readers, with a promise of not a little amusement, and much elegant improvement."
